

DUNCAN HOUSE

William Duncan, also known as Doctor Duncan, was a doctor who worked in Liverpool as its first Medical Officer of Health.

He was appointed by Liverpool's Health of the Town Committee, along with James Newlands, Borough Engineer, and Thomas Fresh, Inspector of Nuisances.

One of the buildings of the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Liverpool is named after him. This building houses the Institute of Ageing and Chronic Disease, and other important research groups.
